PIAVO delivers perfect posture: Speedlink's ergonomic mouse prevents muscle, tendon and joint strain

Weertzen, 16th April 2019: Electronic accessories specialist Speedlink presents a new ergonomic mouse – the PIAVO. It allows users to work for longer without feeling the strain, and is good for the hand, arm, shoulder and back.

Those who often sit for extended periods in the same position at the computer will know a thing or two about back pain. But what many don't know is that the root cause of this pain may well be the mouse. This is because users can't adopt a natural posture when using a standard mouse, forcing them to twist their arm inwards which over time strains not only the hand and arm, but also the shoulder and back. In the worst case, this can result in chronic symptoms such as headaches or muscle pain. To alleviate the strain of working in the office and using a PC, Speedlink has now added a further ergonomic mouse to its lineup. While the PIAVO's shape may seem a bit unusual at first, the vertical design promotes a natural hand and arm posture which helps prevent strain and pain.

"If the doctor mentions the word tendinitis, it's usually far too late." explained Rainer Nawratil, Speedlink's Director of Product Management, PR & Marketing. "At Speedlink we want to make sure that products fit people – not the other way around where people have to adapt to fit the product. Consequently, we aim to continue driving forward the development of ergonomic products."

The PIAVO complements the existing range of ergonomically optimised mice such as the MANEJO and DESCANO. Along with assorted padded wrist rests for the mouse and keyboard, Speedlink now offers a
