

Renowned MEDUSA Gaming Headset now also available as a regular headset: the MEDUSA Street

MEDUSA and ESTRADO – The sound duo for home and work

Weertzen, 8 January 2016 – New year, new MEDUSA. The premium stereo sound of the legendary MEDUSA Gaming Headset is now available in a cutting-edge street design. The name MEDUSA has enjoyed an excellent reputation, especially among gamers, ever since it first appeared in 2003 and is renowned for stunning sound quality. Back then, the original MEDUSA was the first gaming headset to feature true 5.1 surround sound. Now, following on from last year's new stereo version of the gaming headset, SPEEDLINK presents the MEDUSA Street – a regular headset. Another newcomer to the range is the ESTRADO Headset Stand, which brings order to multimedia kit on any desktop with its three USB ports.

New model boasts incredible comfort and sound quality black and white-grey

With a lightweight construction used throughout, the headset weighs in at just 275g – plus it's extremely comfortable thanks to its optimised ear pads. Its flexible headband and folding earcups also mean it stows away in a flash. It's not restricted to home use either: its breathtaking sound quality and flexible noise-reduction microphone, for crystal-clear voice chat, allow users to enjoy music and chat away to their heart's content even when on the move. And if all this isn't enough, the inline remote offers convenient volume and sound adjustment, plus microphone muting, guaranteeing maximum ease of use.
